MILWAUKEE AUTO SHOW
PROVING BIG SUCCESS

The Milwaukee Auditorium, where the 1912 Auto show is being held, permits the placing of automobile exhibits in a spectacular and elaborate decorative scheme, and the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers have decorated the interior of the building and had arranged the display spaces for the exhibitors in every division of the show in the hands of a New York decorating concern, the contract for which amounted to twenty thousand dollars. The Milwaukee show ranked fourth in point of decorative effect last year, upon the authority of critics who visited every show upon the continent, and it is the intention of the show committee, consisting of E. J. Edwards, chairman; Edgar F. Sankor, Robert C. Bates, Al. Hoke, and Geo. W. Browne to surpass the 1911 show in all decorative features, both electrically, artistically and in the color scheme.

The plans of the show include transforming the Auditorium interior into a vast garden in early autumn. This will mean the introduction of artificial foliage that will carry out the artistic idea of the designer. The same idea incorporated in the decorative scheme of the main hall will be carried out in Juneau hall, Kilbourn hall and Walker hall of the annex, and the basement of the main hall.

Brilliantly illuminated as the Auditorium is, the automobile dealers show committee let the contract for the installation of two thousand additional incandescent lamps to be arrayed in arches and in outlining the booths of the exhibition spaces. Many of these miniature incandescents will represent flowers in the foliage of the fall scene, while others will be incandescents in the original stone work in which the garden will be enclosed. Thursday, Jan. 18 has been set aside for the members of the Wisconsin State Automobile Association and the Wisconsin Automobile Dealers' Association. These associations will meet in Juneau hall on the second floor of the annex, and on the same day there will be a Wisconsin congress of road roads enthusiasts which will be addressed by members of the State Highway commission and county officials where the good road movement is being pushed forward.

To entertain visitors to the auto show the Milwaukee dealers have engaged Chandler's orchestra for the main hall and saxette will furnish music in each of the smaller halls of annex. An orchestra has been assigned to the basement. In all there will be seventy-five musicians divided into six playing organizations, and music will be rampant throughout the building.

Where He Was Safe.

"So you have adopted a baby to raise?" we asked of our friend, "Well, it may turn out all right, but don't you think you are taking chances?" "Not a chance," he answers. "No matter how many bad traits the child may develop, my wife can't say he inherits any of them from my side of the house."—Life.

No More Silk Hat Heroes.

The hero who wears an immaculate top hat is getting rare in novels. Perhaps this decline has some relation to the lessening popularity of the hat in real life. COMMISSION PLAN
IS GIVEN A BOOST

"also ran." And the people who it was said you couldn't trust, had elected the three best men out of an original list of thirty-eight. They were good, honest, level-headed men, nothing exceptional or brilliant, but ordinary average men.

Is Most Democratic. "But someone says it is undemocratic, whatever that is; and they will tell you that it is too much like a monarchial form of government, and that it isn't representative, which isn't at all the same thing as democratic. A pure democracy allows all the people to vote on every proposition which comes up, but a representative government gives them the right to choose men whom they will have act for them.

"The commission system, I tell you, is ten times more democratic than the old system, for under the old system you get a chance once a year to vote on one of the men who acted for you in the common council, a vote on one of ten men or ten percent representation. And the most possible votes you could have was for two men out of the ten, those from your own ward giving you at the best twenty percent representation in the city council. You couldn't go to another ward and vote and the other eight men whom you had no part in choosing could nullify twice over the men who represented you. And this could go on year after year.

"What do you get, then? You have the right to vote for every single man who will be held responsible for the affairs of running the government. You have not twenty percent representation but one hundred percent in the running of the affairs of the city which is many times more democratic than the old system. Anyone can see that without a diagram.

Keep The Good Men. "And then they will say that these commissioners whom you elect will build up a machine and you can't get them out. But why not keep them there if they are doing good and efficient work. The machine which they will build up will be a machine of taxpayers who know that the commissioners are doing good work. But if the voters, the stockholders of the municipal corporation, don't care how things are run, if they lose it is their own fault and any kind of law or system would be a failure.

Eau Claire's Commissioners. Mr. Wilcox then outlined the men who were elected commissioners in Eau Claire, his home city, and described what they had done and in spite of the handicap under which they worked.

"We elected good, average, ordinary men," the speaker said. "We got one man by the name of Fleming, who had been a stenographer, had later practiced law and who had been in the banking business, and we elected him mayor. He had good judgment and common sense and we paid him a salary of $3,500.

"We elected a man named Lloyd, an elderly man who had bought tax titles and dealt in real estate. He possessed moderate ability, was honest and inclined to be stubborn. The third man was named Hibsch, a German, who had been running a laundry. He was not an expert in speaking English even, but he was a fairly good business man with some original ideas."

What Council Did.

Mr. Wilcox then explained the conditions which the commissioners faced when they took up the government of the city of Eau Claire. The old council he said made a low tax levy and a bond issue of $45,000 had to be paid soon after they came into office which left them something like $56,000 in the hole. But in spite of this they bought a normal school site, lowered the water rates and made improvements in the water mains, the city owning the water-works in Eau Claire, a reservoir was built, improvements were made in the city market place, and bridges were repaired in addition to the regular work which had to be accomplished.

The price of mandarin pavement was reduced, as was also the cost of laying water mains; and the expense of laying sewers was materially lightened.

There were many other items of expense that were reduced. Among other things they found that the City Attorney had been paid $1,000 and when ever anything special came up it was necessary to hire extra counsel. The commissioners gave a good attorney $300 a year as a retainer fee for doing the ordinary legal business of the city and special arrangements were made for additional payment or the employment of assistance in the case of anything extraordinary which might arise.

Poor Man's Plan.

"It is the poor man's plan," said the speaker, "and it is to the interest of the little taxpayer who has property which is sure to be assessed and which is always on the tax roll, to have the commission form of government adopted." He went on to explain what had been done in Eau Claire to equalize the assessment of the city. The commissioners went at the matter in a sane way to readjust the valuations and secure a proper and equal assessment. They made a list of the city and placed the descriptions which they found on the tax roll on the list, and they found some places weren't taxed. Those they added to the roll. They added to the valuation of some property which had been under-assessed and $310,000 worth of property never before assessed was taxed in the city of Eau Claire.

Sensible Re-adjustment. And some of the men who had been dodging taxes came out and had their valuation raised stating that as long as the government was being run in a square and decent, equitable way, they wouldn't be "fakers" or "spongers."

And so without any connection the assessed valuation of the city was made equitable. "Never before," said the speaker, "was the government so close to the people." The speaker referred to the fact that the commission form had been adopted in two hundred cities and not in one had the people been swindled. He pointed out some of the fallacies which the opposition have quoted in reference to Massachusetts towns and Illinois cities. In closing he said: "Don't let anyone fool you, men. He that hesitates is lost, and here is the chance to get the best thing which has ever been offered to your city. Don't let opportunity go crying down the line when it comes. But let Eau Claire be a city in which all the citizens are pulling together, all for Eau Claire, and all for the commission form of government."

Evansville, Jan. 15.—The death of Mrs. Sarah Wright Andrews which occurred Monday morning at nine o'clock was not unexpected by her family and nearest neighbors. For seven years she had suffered from bright's disease and for six months had not left the home.

She was born at Barlastone, Leicestershire, England, October 15, 1828. At the age of twenty she came with her parents to America and settled near relatives in La Fayette county. In the year 1850 she was married to John C. Andrews, a native of Ohio, and a Wisconsin pioneer. FIRE DOES DAMAGE

TO CLINTON BANK

Citizens' Bank Takes Fire Early This Morning Resulting in Considerable Loss.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Clinton, Jan. 15.—At 3:15 o'clock this morning fire was discovered by Night-watchman A. Baldwin in the Citizens' bank building. Mr. Baldwin had entered the establishment to make his inspection and when he went into the toilet room he lighted a match to see if the water pipes were frozen, according to his custom during the recent severe weather.

In an instant the small room was in a blaze, an explosion evidently having occurred. Considerable repair work has recently been done on the building and it is thought that the gases from the paints, oils and varnishes which were stored in the building ignited, causing the blaze. Mr. Baldwin called the fire department, who succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but the damage will amount to several hundred dollars. The new decorations and finish is ruined and will have to be done over. Four plate glass transoms over the windows were cracked. The bank, since its remodeling was a most beautiful building.

It was when "The Time, The Place, and The Girl" was running in the La Salle that Mr. Askin asked and obtained the right to use the play on tour. THIEF SENTENCED TO ONE YEAR IN PRISON

John Miller, Who Was Captured By Milwaukee Police After Stealing Overcoat Here Pleads Guilty.

Waiving his privilege of a preliminary examination, John Miller, who was captured by the Milwaukee police soon after his theft of an overcoat from George Tremblay in this city, this morning filed a petition to be allowed to plead guilty at once, and was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the state prison at Waupun, the first day of which shall be spent at hard labor.

Miller, who is a young man twenty-six years old, of light build, pale complexion, and fairly well dressed, told the judge that he had worked in the sugar factory here for a little over two months and that he came here from Canada. He is a single man and has no relatives. When asked whether he had anything to say before sentence was passed upon him he replied that he had no remarks to make.

According to information which he gave the police, Miller has been tried and convicted of other crimes. He said that he had been sentenced for a five year term in the Michigan state prison on being found guilty of larceny, but had been let out on parole. He had also served ninety days for stealing an overcoat on a previous occasion.

When first arraigned this morning he did not understand the judge and consented to an examination which was set for ten o'clock tomorrow morning, the accused to furnish $500 bail. On learning what his action meant he at once changed his mind.

FEW CHANGES MADE BY BOARD IN VALUATIONS

Not More Than Six Men Filed Complaints With Board of Review This Morning—Call Witnesses.

Not more than six or seven men gave testimony this morning before the Board of Review in an effort to lower the valuations placed on their property by the Tax Commission assessors and but two very slight changes have been made thus far as the result of complaints filed before the board. The board is not making decisions or passing judgments in the presence or hearing of the complainant but only after a careful examination of the written testimony.

The burden of the proof now rests entirely with the tax payer. He must submit to a careful and thorough cross-examination regarding any piece of property on whose valuation he makes protest and the board also reserves the right to subpoena witnesses to arrive at the truth of stated values. This right has been exercised in one instance so far; that of a manufacturing corporation which protested its assessment.

The assessors who will remain throughout the session of the Board of Review have seven thousand cards on each of which is a complete and detailed description of a piece of real estate, and about an equal number with descriptions of personal property holdings.

Personal property is divided into seventeen different classes and the inventory value of each separate article is stated thereon. The real estate cards state the description and location of each piece of property, the condition of buildings as to repair, remodeling, nature and state of condition of buildings as to repair, remodeling, state and nature of roof, floors, lighting, heating and price of sale if any has been made within the last five years. This data is all re-examined and checked over when assessments are protested.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah C. Little.

A telegram to Mrs. Johanna Jones of the State School for the Blind, received this morning, announced the death of Mrs. Sarah C. Little at her home in Oberlin, Ohio. Mrs. Little was born at Oberlin, March 1, 1838. Her maiden name was Sarah Cohen. She came to Janesville in 1861 and entered the state school as a teacher. A year later she was married to the superintendent, Thomas H. Little, and at his death in 1875 was appointed as his successor.

This position she filled acceptably until 1891 when a change of state administration caused her removal, when she went back to the old home where she has since resided. Her time was devoted to missionary work, and she was particularly interested in the care and education of children of missionaries in foreign fields, who sent their children home for the advantages of American schools.

Mrs. Little was a woman of rare culture and strong personality. She possessed excellent ability combined with all the Christian graces which make for character, and the school over which she presided became a home which will always be remembered by the adult blind of the state, many of whom enjoyed its privileges. She was an active worker in the Congregational church and her life was an inspiration to all who knew her.

Four daughters survive: Elizabeth and Agnes, at home; and Mrs. D. P. Simpson and Mrs. E. D. Jackson. Miss Elizabeth Little, a sister of the late Mr. Little, is also a member of the home. The remains will rest at Oberlin until later, when they will be brought to Janesville and placed in the family lot at Oak Hill.

John Lawler.

William E. Lawler received a telegram this morning announcing the death of his father, John Lawler, at his home in Genoa, Ill. Mr. Lawler left at noon today for Genoa to attend the funeral.

Mrs. Amanda Sherman. The funeral services of the late Mrs. Amanda Sherman of La Prairie will be held from the home tomorrow morning at eleven o'clock. The remains will be brought to Oak Hill cemetery for interment and services will be conducted in the chapel there.

Fractious Animal Belonging to J. B. Sprackling Runs Away Yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sprackling had a narrow escape from a serious accident yesterday afternoon when the colt which they were driving down Milwaukee street became frightened at a cow which was being taken toward town and started to kick. Finally breaking away from the sleigh, the occupants were thrown out by the first dash of the colt, though none of them were hurt. With the thrills of a race, the horse dashed through Milwaukee street onto Pleasant street and then on for six miles in the country.

BUTTER RISES AGAIN; NO BANANAS IN CITY

Butter Selling at 47¢ to 48¢ a Pound.
—Local Dealers Unable to Get Bananas Shipped.

Butter has gone up higher than it has been in twenty-four years, selling on the local markets at 48¢ a pound. This brings to the notice of the housewife the many substitutes which are offered for sale, which, though they do not come up to butter are preferable to butter when it gets to be as dear as it is today.

Almost no bananas may be had at any price today as the local dealers cannot get them shipped from Chicago owing to the cold weather. Nothing can be told as to how long this arctic temperature will continue to hinder the growers, but it is hoped that a few more days at the most will see the end of the cold wave and permit the shipping of vegetables and fruits from other points. Fine Poultry at Vermont Show.
St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 16.—Poultry fanciers from all parts of New England are in attendance at the Vermont State Poultry Association, which opened here today at the City Hall. Owing to the fact that in addition to the regular prizes many new special prizes were offered this year, the number of entries is unusually large and the exhibition exceeds in number and quality even that of last year, when more than 1,400 birds were shown. H. H. May of Boston and D. P. Shroyer of Fall River, Mass., are the judges.

Retirement of Col. Woodward.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—After more than 38 years' service, Col. Charles C. Woodward, of the Coast Artillery Corps, was transferred to the retired list of the army today on his own application. Col. Woodward is from Maryland and was graduated from the West Point academy in 1877.

Western Implement Dealers.
Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 16.—The Western Retail Implement and Vehicle Dealers' Association began its annual convention in Kansas City today with an attendance of nearly one thousand prominent representatives of the trade from a dozen or more States. The proceedings of the convention will occupy three days.

Lumber Dealers of Two States.
Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—The Colorado and Wyoming Lumber Dealers' Association began its annual convention at the Brown Palace Hotel today with a good attendance of members from the two states. The convention will continue three days.

Science and Art.
Science and art are in spirit the same, and they must be pursued with the same ardor. The scientist, like the artist, must be ready to do anything and go anywhere to get in touch with nature in his chosen field. He must deem no sacrifice of time or money too great to secure a real mastery of the technique of his profession. It is through weakness in technique that much of our science presents so amateurish an appearance.—Richard C. MacLaurin, in the Atlantic

Bay's Marcus:
Begin the morning by saying to thyself: "I shall meet the busybody, the ungrateful, arrogant, deceitful, envious, and unsocial. But I who have seen the nature of the good, that it is beautiful, and of the bad, that it is ugly, can be injured by none of them."
—Marcus Aurelius.

Benefit of Laughter.
Laughter stirs up the blood, expands the chest, electrifies the nerves, clears away the cobwebs from the brain and gives the whole system a shock to which the volute-pile is as nothing.—William Matthews.

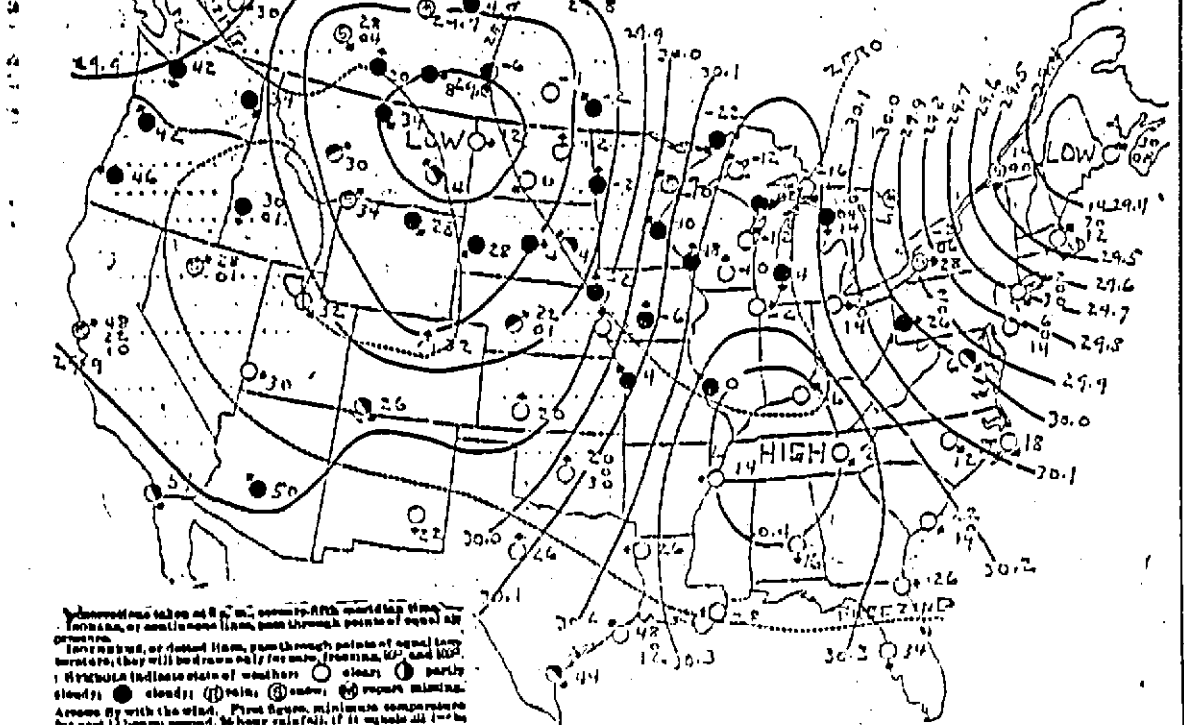

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND "CURES IN EVERY CASE."

Mr. Jas. McCafferty, Mgr. of the Schlicht Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recommended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs, colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. Refuse substitutes. Badger Drug Co.

WORLD-WIDE SEARCH FOR BOY.
Chicago, Ill.—An international search is being made for little "Jilly" Lindsay, heir to a million-dollar fortune, who has been spirited away in order to prevent his giving evidence against the "Reverend" Dr. Hanish, leader of the local Sun Cult. Canadian cities are being searched and there is a rumor also that he has been taken to South America. The case has been hanging fire for several weeks and was brought to a head when the young lad who for some time has been living at the Sun Cult headquarters here, failed to appear before the Juvenile Court, and it was shown that he had disappeared as completely as though he had vanished into thin air. Detectives have been retained by Charles Lindsay, uncle of the boy, to locate and bring him back to Chicago. Mr. Lindsay and his attorney, former Judge Willard Melton, both declared that he will be found very soon. Relatives of the missing boy's father declare that his mother, called the "Vahdah" of the Cult, is not responsible for her actions, and that she is under some hypnotic influence. One of Hanish's books, "Inner Studies," is under close scrutiny by the federal authorities, together with some other published perpetrations of his. Some of them are declared to make the best efforts of Evelyn Arthur See appear amateurish, in the extent of their revolting contents.

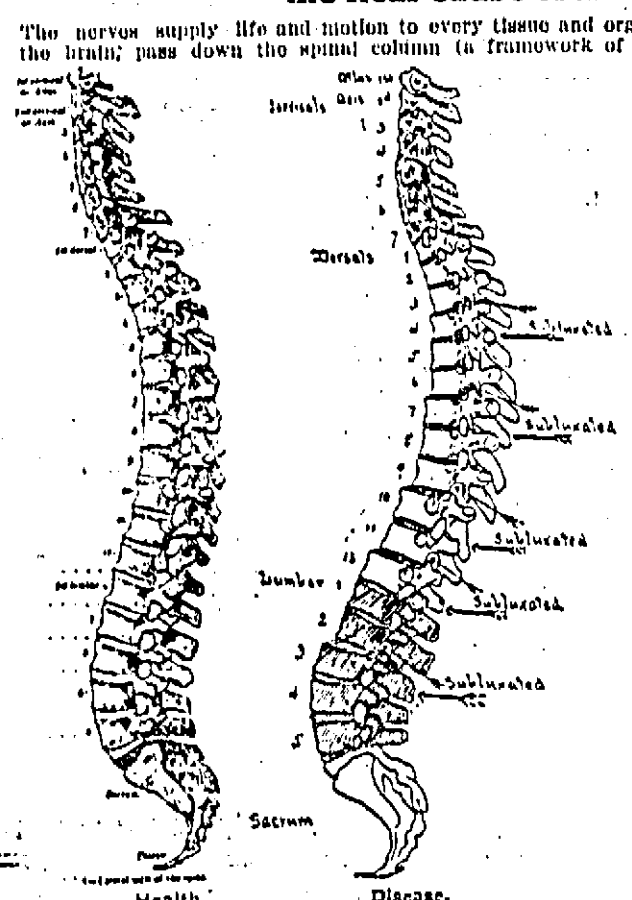

U.S. Department of Agriculture. WEATHER BUREAU WILLIS L. MOORE, Chief.

The storm center that was off New York yesterday morning has moved slowly northward along the coast. It has caused snow and heavy snow in New England and the St. Lawrence valley. The area of high atmospheric pressure has moved from the upper Mississippi valley to the lower Mississippi and southeastern states. It has caused freezing temperatures over the Gulf of Mexico and northern Florida, and zero temperatures to the Ohio valley. Warmer weather prevails in the West, where an area of low atmospheric pressure occupies the Rocky mountain region. It will advance westward bringing light snow in this vicinity with warmer weather tonight.

Why Do You Continue to Be Sick?

Chiropractic Can Make You Well.—Pinched Nerves Are the Real Cause of All Disease.

The nerves supply life and motion to every tissue and organ of the body. The nerves originate in the brain, pass down the spinal column (a framework of bones) as the spinal cord and send off branches called the spinal nerves through the holes or foramina in the spinal column. Notice illustrations. These nerves connect with all parts of the body.

When the openings in the spine are full size as in the first illustration there is no pressure on the nerves and you have perfect health. When the foramina are partly closed, as in the second illustration, as the result of falls, heavy lifting, etc., the nerves are pinched; they cannot carry their full supply of nerve force and the organs to which they go are weakened and diseased.

If you are sick or ailing it is because of mechanical derangements in your spine. Chiropractic Adjustments will remove them and nature will make you well.

No matter what your disease Chiropractic is the way out. Investigate this wonderful science.

The Word That Frees Us From Trouble.

HERE is a Chinese padlock which opens only to the spelling of a name to which its words are fitted," says a writer. "Every difficulty we encounter has some key," he goes on, "which will unlock it, when we have discovered the right word, and learned to fit it to its place."

With many of us, our attitude toward trouble has been for so long that of resignation; we have been so taught to consider it as some thing sent by a higher power and so to be endured; that we have rarely, if ever, taken it up, turned it over, examined it, and seen if it had anything of value for us, any message; or if not, if there was any way to dispose of it, but along with many things that are being studied in a new spirit these days, trouble is included. And we are beginning to find it a vastly different thing from what we have hitherto considered it.

Let us look at our special trouble or difficulty as this writer suggests, and see what word will dislodge it. For undoubtedly, there is a word, which, standing for some quality of character, we need to bring to bear on our difficulty, and which will overcome it.

Perhaps the word we need is Trust. Will this fit the padlock of the trouble that is enshrouding us? If we can feel an unshaken trust in an overruling good, will not our trouble melt before it? It is any longer trouble?

Perhaps the word we need is Confidence. Difficulties may be piling up mountains high in our path, because we lack the confidence in ourselves to attack them. We are fearful of disaster and hesitate; and the longer we hesitate, the bigger they seem. But if we look upon them courageously, feel that we have the power within us to conquer every one of them, they will immediately lose all power to sow us.

Or we may need the word Persistence to set us free from our special burden. It may be some habit that is filling our life with unhappiness, and our efforts to get rid of it are too spasmodic. They are not persistent enough. Or perhaps our search for work, or more congenial work, lacks persistence. We halt so much, that we make little progress.

Maybe the word we need is simply Gladness. Gladness has a wonderful power for accomplishing things. It is like sunshine. It gives life and vitality and power to do. Gladness makes life joyous, for it attracts friends and success and good of all kinds. If our burden is gloom and pessimism and things generally going wrong, let's apply that magical word, Gladness, and see if a change is not soon wrought.

But whatever our trouble or difficulty is, let us hunt for the word that will free us from it. There is no need to be sadly resigned. We do not have to trudge all our days under the weight of it. Something which we need and which we lack will free us from it. Let us find it, apply it, and not only will the trouble disappear, but our lives will be the richer because of our acquisition.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"But lady when thy voice I greet

Not heavenly music seems so sweet."

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"Her voice was ever soft,

Gentle and low; an excellent thing in woman."

—Shakespeare.

HOW many women do you suppose there are in the world who could not, by sufficient effort, cultivate distinctly pleasing voices?

Myself, I doubt if there are any at all, hopelessly handicapped in this direction—at any rate, very few.

And yet, how often do you hear a voice which—apart from personal associations—you find active pleasure in hearing.

Mighty seldom, I reckon. Strange, is it not, that while women frantically offer all sorts of lotions and potions, their last dime and dollar, and sometimes even their health, upon the altar of the fickle goddess of beauty, they will not even give a little time and thought to possessing that charm which many people rate quite as high as physical loveliness—an attractive voice?

Of course, you understand that by an attractive voice I do not mean a good singing voice—merely, an agreeable speaking voice.

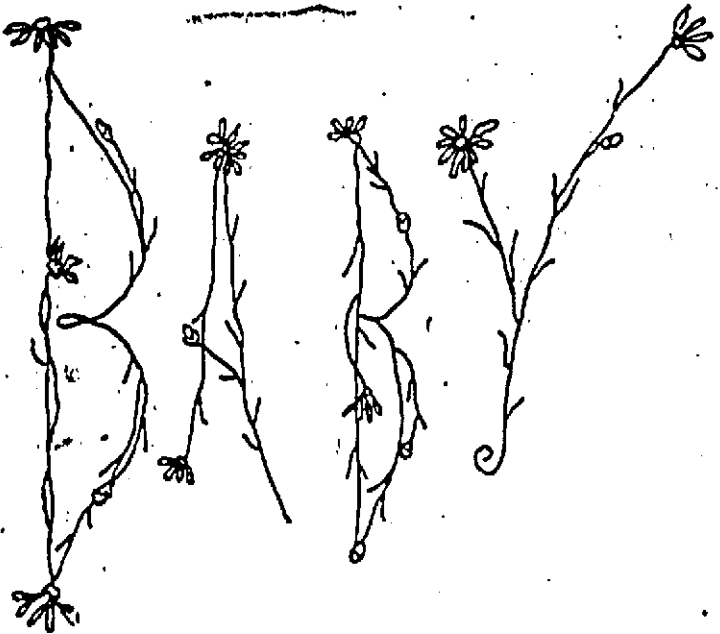

Such a voice should be, in the first place, properly placed. It should come from the chest and throat and never from the head. About one-half of the American women, I believe, speak most of the time from the head.

In the second place, it is to be musical, a voice should be well modulated—not always harping on the same note, but using now one note and now another, it is the lack of this change of pitch that makes reading aloud so often monotonous, and, of course, it has the same effect upon conversation, although one notices it more in the steady reading.

In the third place a good voice is always free from any note of complaint, or fretfulness or nervousness. There are some people whose conversation is disagreeable and wearying to listen to, no matter what they say, because of the continual note of complaint or nervousness in their voices.

Again, though a voice should be low pitched, that does not mean that it should be so low and have so little breath behind it as to be with difficulty audible. When Shakespeare set his seal of approval on a woman's voice which was "soft, gentle, and low," I am sure he did not mean the faintest whisper which some women affect. I have known women who used so little energy in speaking that listening to them was a constant strain. This is what I call a positively selfish habit, for by so doing they forced their listeners to supply, in mental and aural activity, the energy they failed to use. Indeed, I think that vitality and heartiness are indispensable qualities in a really pleasing voice. No matter how carefully placed and modulated a voice may be it is not thoroughly agreeable if it lacks these qualities.

If many women spent the time they employ rubbing absolutely futile lotions into themselves, giving their finger nails that ridiculously artificial polish and plucking and unpinching elaborate rats and puffs, in listening to and trying to improve their voices, I think they would accomplish more towards increasing their charm than they now do.

FOR BABY'S PILLOW.

This pretty word-embroidered on a sheer linen cover will make a dainty pillow for the baby. The flowers should be worked solid and the stems in the over and over stitch, very closely and evenly done. Mercerized cotton No. 20 will be suitable.

The KITCHEN CABINET

B DIPLOMATIC—A farmer out west used to keep himself supplied with coal by making faces at the engineer as the train went by.

USING UP LEFT-OVERS.

Leftovers are like the poor, "always with us," and the problem how to convert them into appetizing and wholesome dishes is a constant one. Especially at this season, after the holiday dinners and entertainments, there is always much left that is too good to be thrown away. The questionable economy of some housekeepers, who are most careful to save every particle of food and convert it with great pains and expense into dishes which cost more than the original cannot be too strongly condemned. Common sense and brains must be used in mixing food.

It has been said that there is nothing quite so satisfying to the cook as to see a diet eaten with evident enjoyment, which had been refused when served in another form at some previous meal.

Turkey Soup.—The carcass of the turkey makes a finely flavored soup. Break the bones and cover with cold water, adding any bits of meat that may be left. Bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer two hours. Strain, remove fat and season with salt and pepper. A few pieces of celery may be added to the soup while cooking, or a slice of onion, for flavor.

The ways of using stale bread and cake are legion. The crumbs may make stuffing for fowl or for breading chops or crumbling croquettes, for puddings and griddle cakes, such a number of things that never a crumb should be thrown away unless it is to feed the hungry birds.

Buckwheat Cakes.—Pour a pint of scalded milk over a third of a cup of bread crumbs and let stand thirty minutes; add a half teaspoonful of salt, and a yeast cake which has been softened in lukewarm water, then add enough buckwheat to make a thin batter to pour. Let rise over night; in the morning beat well and add a tablespoonful of molasses and a fourth of a teaspoon of soda dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Good Things from Canned Tomatoes—Buy the Best Brand.

By Allen E. Whiteaker.

The possibilities of a can of tomatoes are many but depend somewhat on the quality. Bargains in canned tomatoes are advertised often but rarely prove to be worth more than was paid for them. The best grade in tin and packed solidly costs but fifteen cents. By draining carefully it is often possible to slice the unbroken tomato for a salad and the remainder can be used to flavor soups or as the liquid part for a sauce.

For scalloping tomatoes use bread crumbs in alternate layers and season with salt, pepper and butter and use sugar if preferred. For sauces heat and strain the tomato, thicken and season highly with onion, juice salt and pepper and allow a rounding tablespoon of butter to each cup of sauce.

By mistake a ten cent can was sent to me the other day which proved to be little but seeds and liquid that was unusually acid. Because there was very little pulp in it the whole can was needed for a blague which is usually made with half a can of the better grade.

Tomatoes may be used in three kinds of soup. The simplest, if there is stock on hand, is made by heating a quart can of tomatoes and pressing all but the seeds through a strainer. Add a level teaspoon of sugar and four cups of soup stock. Half the rule is sufficient for a small family.

Another kind is made without stock. Put two cups of boiling water, a quart can of tomatoes, two slices of onion, four cloves, and a stalk of celery if at hand, into a sauce pan and cook twenty minutes. Strain through a wire strainer. Add three level tablespoonfuls of corn starch mixed with enough water to pour and cook eight minutes. Season with a level teaspoon of salt, a salt spoon of pepper and a level tablespoonful of sugar and press through a strainer.

Some cooks fail to make a tomato blague smooth and creamy. This is because they do not know how to put it together. Half an hour before it is to be served take for the soup one quart of milk, one-half quart can of tomatoes, one-half of a small onion cut fine, three whole cloves, one and one half level teaspoons of salt, three or four dashes of white pepper, one-quarter level teaspoon of soda, one-quarter cup each of flour and butter.

Heat the milk to the boiling point with the onion and cloves. Take out the cloves, add the flour rubbed smooth with cold water and cook twenty minutes; do not shorten the time for the starch should be well cooked both for flavor and digestibility. Heat the tomatoes and press through a wire strainer being sure to get all the pulp through, add the soda and when the tomato stops foaming add the thickened milk, the onion and butter. Stir just enough to combine well and serve at once with heated crackers.

Thought for Today
By MRS. ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE

MRS. ELLEN H. RICHARDS.
The plan of a memorial to Mrs. Ellen H. Richards is especially fitting to a life like hers. Instead of a tablet or a statue, instead of a few big contributions, it is hoped to raise a hundred thousand dollars, mostly gifts of a dollar from the great numbers who caught the inspiration of her life and to devote the income of the fund to the continuance of the work she loved most—Home Economics.

Mrs. Richards held the chair of Sanitary Chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Most of the sanitary chemists of the country owe part at least of their training to Mrs. Richards. But her greatest service was working into the practical every day life of the people the results of scientific research. All her books teach better control of our environment.

The New England Kitchen in Boston, the Model Kitchen at the World's Fair in Chicago, where good lunches of definite food value were served at low cost, the problem of working men's lunches, of children's school lunches, and lunches for amiable children, were all worked through Mrs. Richards' initiative.

But it is in connection with the development of the home economies movement that Mrs. Richards will be most widely known. She directed all her strong influence to the introduction of home economies and manual training in the schools, and to the teaching of teachers for this new education. With Mrs. Melvil Dewey she started the Lake Placid Conference which developed into the National Home Economics Association.

With her remarkable intellectual gifts and power of achievement, she united a sympathetic heart. Although she earned much as a teacher, writer, lecturer and analyst, she did without money. She had put it into her work and into the lives of men and women all over the country to make them better and more efficient.

SMART DRESS FOR A SCHOOL GIRL.

yoke sleeves, belt and front panels of the skirt were borders of cashmere with a cream ground and a Persian pattern in red, green, blue and black delightfully arranged and blended as colors always are in an Oriental design.

The touch "do resistance" however, the thing that caught my eye and delighted my latent childishness, was the strapping of scarlet velvet ribbon upon the sleeves each strap held with a white pearl button. With red hair ribbons to match I am sure any little girl would trot off proudly to school in this gown—the envy of all her schoolmates.

and is especially attractive when molded small and laid on lettuce leaves. It is also used as a garnish molded in a square enamel pan and cut in thin slices with a sharp knife. Never allow it to stand in tin on account of the acid in the tomato. Heat one quart can of tomatoes with two slices of onion, one clove, a bit of bay leaf, a salt spoon of white pepper and a level teaspoon each of sugar and salt. Simmer fifteen minutes. Soak two and one-half level tablespoonfuls of gelatin in four tablespoonfuls of water for half an hour and add to the hot tomato. Press through a fine strainer but be sure to get all the pulp; turn into small molds. Sometimes these are roughened over the surface to resemble freshly peeled tomatoes.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

GUARDING AGAINST PREMATURE BREAKDOWN.

In the construction of a bridge a margin of safety is always provided for, so that if a much greater weight than that which it is ordinarily expected to carry should be put upon it, disaster may not follow. A steam boiler for the same reason is capable of bearing a much higher pressure than that which is sufficient for its ordinary purpose. This principle should be applied in the management of the human machine, so as to avoid the frequent premature collapse from apoplexy, heart failure and nervous breakdown. This means to conserve vitality, to strengthen vital resistance while one is in good health. By reducing the weight to normal, a useless expenditure of energy is avoided. By simplifying the diet much vitality is saved that is ordinarily expended in digestion and elimination. By avoiding worry, nervous energy is saved. By keeping the skin in good working condition the kidneys are saved, so that if an attack of pneumonia should accrue they will be prepared for the increased work.

The Frugal Life.
The average workman in Reichensberg, Austria-Hungary, lives on 20 cents a day, his meals being as follows: Breakfast, bread, butter and coffee; forenoon lunch, bread and butter; noon meal, soup, sausage, potatoes and coffee or beer; afternoon lunch, a little bread; evening meal, potatoes and buttermilk or coffee. At the Sunday noon meal he has pork or beef, in addition to the usual work-day meal.

Mirrors in Decorations.
In the sixteenth century no lady was considered in full dress unless she had a mirror at her breast. It was oval in shape about 4 by 6 inches in size.

Valuable Man.
"I say," cried the business man to the detective, "some fellow has been representing himself as a collector of ours. He has been getting in more money than any two of the men we have, and I want him caught as quick as you can." "All right," I'll have him in jail in less than a week." "Great Scott, man! I don't want to put him in jail. I want to engage him!"—Ideas.

Soldiers' Head Covering.
The British soldier carries a helmet which weighs nearly 14 pounds; the helmet of the Prussian infantryman weighs only a trifle over 14 ounces; while the Italian is still better off with a kepi which turns the scale at between 11 ounces and 12 ounces.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boards with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

NO HIBERNATING FOR SCOUTS THIS WINTER COMES NEAR DEATH ON WAY TO SCHOOL

Outdoor Work Made Less Strainous
But Plenty of Indoor Activity
Is Provided for Boys.

Winter is not the time for Boy
Scouts who take a rest from scouting.
Of course it is not possible to do so much outdoor work, but there are plenty of things that the boys can do indoors and enjoy themselves for extensive scouting next summer. However, long hikes in the snow and snow shoes or tracking animals by their footprints, looking for birds and even building fires in the woods, provide plenty of fun. Many scoutmasters, however, are working out the problem of keeping the boys interested indoors. There is plenty to do at meetings, held once or twice a week. Many scoutmasters are arranging a time for having men address the boys on subjects in which the scouts are eager to obtain merit badges. For instance, chiefs of the fire departments in various cities give talks to the boys. Lieut. Martin A.
Kenney of Boston, has been talking to the boy scouts on the methods of combating fires. In New York, Dr.
Geo. A. Soper is giving lectures to the boys on first aid. In Nashville, Tennessee, has interested his boys in making miniature trepaws, Indian pipes, bows and arrows, and also has succeeded in getting them to work hard on first aid. In St. Paul, Minn., the Boy Scouts of America, which has a large number of scouts, get exports on trees, flowers, camping fire lighting and similar activities to address the boys.

Many Boy Scouts throughout the country who have passed the examinations for tenderfoot and second class scouts are much disappointed that the coming of winter prevents them from participating in certain activities that will enable them to get their first class scout badge before next spring.
The leaders of the scout movement, however, do not regard this fact as a detraction to the movement, and think that while a scout is waiting to get his first class badge he can be gaining great proficiency in the many other activities in which a scout prides himself on being accomplished and that his interest and ability will increase thus because of the fact that he is hindered to a certain extent. If a boy is a good energetic scout, the delay and the disappointment will serve only to back him up and make him more determined.

CIG SPRING FLOODS MAY BE EXPECTED

Devastating floods are expected in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys early this spring as a result of the heavy general fall of snow this winter.
If the spring thaw and rains come at the same time, floods will be almost inevitable, according to Prof. H. J.
Cox, head of the Chicago weather bureau.

A general thaw is expected in a climate rule in the late winter and early spring. The first half of January has been of such recent severity that February and March must be mild, if the weather looks are to be balanced.
"There are millions and millions of gallons of water stored throughout western America in snow and ice," said Prof. Cox, yesterday. "If the spring thaws are gradual and scattered, the streams should be able to carry off the flow without disaster.
But to get all that melted snow running at once, with a few hard rains added—well, bad floods will result."
The widespread layer of snow over western North America, it is said, also will delay balmy temperatures for a while.

Six Year Old Girl Nearly Frozen to Death on Way to Utter's Corners School Last Thursday.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Utter's Corners, Jan. 15.—The six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Fred Moore escaped death from ex-posure to the severe cold by a very close margin. Thursday morning while on the road to school at this place, she and her eight year old brother started to walk to school, a distance of over two miles, and when they got as far as Arthur Scherz's they stopped to get warm and were urged to stay, but they were determined to go on to school. Fearing for their safety, Mr. Scherz telephoned to George Hull to be on the lookout for the little ones and on looking out he saw the boy coming down the road alone and he hastened to investigate.
After going up the road some distance he found the little girl lying exhausted in the snow, and made all haste in getting her by a fire. Her ears, hands and feet were frosted, but at present, although suffering from the effects of the frost bites, appears to be getting along nicely and it is expected that she will recover.

School Resumed.
Miss Ward dismissed her school here Thursday night until the weather gets warmer. On Sunday it became warmer—20 degrees above zero—and school commenced again on Monday.
We are having good weather at noon today, although it is pleasant.

Colter Curated.
The steam boiler at the Spring
Brook Creamery burst Thursday morning. The accident was caused by an outside door opening and letting a strong north wind blow on the boiler.
No one was in the room at the time and no damage resulted other than bursting the boiler.

FRECKLES

McLean helped the angel to her feet. "Do you think any bones are broken?" snapped Freckles. "You see if you can find any, sir." McLean assured Freckles that she was not seriously injured. Freckles nodded back with a smile of ineffable tenderness on his face. "Thank the Lord!" he hoarsely whispered.

The angel broke from McLean. "Now, Freckles, you!" she cried. "It's your turn. Please get up!" A pitiful spasm swept Freckles' face. The angel took hold of his hand.

"Freckles, get up!" It was half command, half entreaty. "Easy, angel, easy. Let me rest a bit first," implored Freckles. She knelt beside him. He reached his arm about her and drew her up close to him. He looked at McLean in an agony of entreaty that brought the tears to his knees on the other side.

"On, Freckles!" McLean cried. "Not that! Surely we can do something! We must! Let me see!"

He tried to unfasten Freckles' neck-band, but his fingers shook so clumsily that the angel pushed them away and herself laid Freckles' chest-bare. With just one hasty glance she gathered up the angel in her arms.

"Oh, angel!" she cried sharply. "Good-by! What do you mean? Who's saying good-by? Where could Freckles go, when he is hurt like this, but to the hospital? You call up the men. We must start right away."

"It's no use, angel," said Freckles. "I'm thinking I've been in no breast band, but his fingers shook so clumsily that the angel pushed them away and herself laid Freckles' chest-bare. With just one hasty glance she gathered up the angel in her arms."

"Oh, angel!" she cried sharply. "Good-by! What do you mean? Who's saying good-by? Where could Freckles go, when he is hurt like this, but to the hospital? You call up the men. We must start right away."

"All summer I've been thanking God for the falling of the feather and all the delights it's brought me," he muttered, "but this looks like..."

He raised questioning eyes to McLean. "I can't help being Irish, but I can help being superstitious," he said. "I mustn't be laying it to the Almighty, nor to the bird, must I?"

"No, dear lad," said McLean, stroking the brilliant hair. "The choice lay with you. You could have stood a rooted dot like all the rest of us. It was through your great love and your high courage that you made the sacrifice."

"Don't you be so naming it, sir!" cried Freckles. "It's just the reverse. If I could be giving me body the hundred times over to save her from this, I'd be doing it and take joy with every pain."

He turned with a smile of adoring tenderness to the angel. She scarcely seemed to hear or understand what was coming, but she bravely tried to answer that smile.

"Is my forehead covered with dirt?" he asked. She shook her head. "You did once," he gasped. "Just as you laid her lips on his forehead, then on each cheek, and then in a long kiss on his lips."

"Freckles," said McLean brokenly, "you will never know how I love you. You won't go without saying good-by to me?"

"That word stung the angel to quick comprehension. She started as if rousing from sleep. "Good-by!" she cried sharply. "Good-by! What do you mean? Who's saying good-by? Where could Freckles go, when he is hurt like this, but to the hospital? You call up the men. We must start right away."

here soon. When they stood ready to lift Freckles the angel bent over him in a passion of tenderness. "Dear old Lincolnton guard, we're going to lift you now," she said. "I suspect you will faint from the pain of it, but we will be just as easy as ever we can, and don't you dare forget your promise!"

A whimsical half smile touched Freckles' quivering lips. "Angel, can a man be remembering a promise when he ain't knowing?" he asked.

"You can," said the angel stoutly, "because a promise means so much more to you than it does to most men."

A look of strength flashed into Freckles' face at her words. "I am ready," he said.

With the first touch his eyes closed, a mighty groan was wrenched from him, and he lay senseless. The angel gave Duncan one panic-stricken look. Then she set her lips and gathered her forces again.

"I guess that's a good thing," she said. "Maybe he won't feel how we are hurting him. Oh, boys, are you being quick and gentle?"

She stepped to the side of the cot and bathed Freckles' face. Taking his hand in hers, she gave the word to start. She told the men to ask every able-bodied man they met to join them so that they could change carriers often and make good time.

The Bird Woman insisted upon taking the angel into the carriage and following the cot, but the angel refused to leave Freckles and suggested that the Bird Woman drive ahead, pack them some clothing, and be at the station ready to accompany them to Chicago. All the way the angel walked beside the cot, shading Freckles' face and holding his hand. At every pause to change carriers she moistened his face and lips and counted each breath with heartbreaking anxiety.

She scarcely knew when her father joined them, and, taking the branch from her, slipped an arm about her waist and almost carried her along. To the city streets and the swarm of curious, staring faces she paid no more attention than she had to the trees of the Lincolnton. When the train pulled in and the gang placed Freckles aboard, Duncan made a place for the angel beside the cot.

With the best physician to be found, and with the Bird Woman and McLean in attendance, the four hours' run to Chicago began. Not for an instant would the angel yield her place, or allow any one else to do anything for him. The Bird Woman and McLean regarded her in amazement. The only time she spoke was to ask McLean if he was sure the special would be ready on the Pittsburgh line. He replied that it was made up and waiting.

At 5 o'clock Freckles lay stretched on the operating table of Lake View hospital, while three of the greatest surgeons in Chicago bent over him. At their command, McLean picked up the unwilling angel and carried her out to the nurses to be bathed, have her bruises attended to, and be put to bed.

In a place where it is difficult to surprise people, they were astonished when women as they removed the angel's dainty stained and torn clothing, peeled off nose muck baked to her limbs, soaked the dried loam from her aching hair and washed the beautiful, scratched, bruised, dirt-covered body.

The angel felt fast asleep long before they had finished, and lay deeply unconscious, while the light for Freckles' life was being waged.

Three days later she was up early and hovering near Freckles' door. The surgeon was with him. "The angel had been told that the word he brought that morning would be final, so she curled up in a window seat, dropped the curtains behind her, and, in dire anxiety, waited the opening of that closed door."

Just as it unfolded, McLean came hurrying down the hall and up to the surgeon, but with one glance at his face he stepped back in dismay, and the angel, who had risen, sank to the seat again, too dazed to come forward. The men faced each other. The angel, with parted lips and frightened eyes, bent forward in tense anxiety.

"—I thought he was doing nicely?" faltered McLean.

"He bore the operation well," replied the surgeon, "and his wounds are not necessarily fatal. I told you that yesterday, but I did not tell you that something else would probably kill him, and it will. He need not die from the accident, but he will not live the day out because he so evidently prefers death to life. He was full of hope and ambition to live, my work would be easy. If all of you love him as you prove you do, and there is unlimited means to give him anything he wants, why should he desire death?"

"Is he dying?" demanded McLean.

"He is," said the surgeon. "He will not live this day out, unless some strong reaction sets in at once. He is so low that, preferring death to life, nature cannot overcome his inertia. If he is to live, he must be made to desire life."

"Then he must die," said McLean.

"Does that mean that you know what he desires and cannot, or will not, supply it?"

Secret of Influence.

Force, fervor, intensity—these are the qualities which have given their power to great leaders in all the movements by which the world has been awayed. Sometimes they have been present in men who left so little written memorial or whose efforts were followed by adverse circumstances that we can note only the fact that they must have been remarkable because their contemporaries admired and followed them. They possessed the secret of influence, though we can not tell how they manifested it. They are among the rarities of history.—Chambers' Journal.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A SOAP REBELLION.

By A. W. MACY.

Soap was one of the factors that contributed to the downfall of Charles I. of England. He was always in need of money, and was in the habit of granting monopolies for the manufacture and sale of various commodities, charging the monopolists good round sums for their privileges. The scheme worked well, and he realized something like $200,000 from this source. The practice aroused a great deal of opposition, however. About 1630 he granted a patent to a company of soap makers, who were to be the sole manufacturers of that useful article in England. They paid him $10,000 cash and £8 per ton for all soap produced. Then the women rose in rebellion. They petitioned against it, complaining that the new soap burned the linen, scalded the fingers and wasted in keeping. Not being able to get at Charles himself, they clamorously besieged the lord-mayor of London, demanding that he do something for their relief. He shrank from meeting them, and was reprimanded by Charles for his cowardice.

Keeping a Fortune.

It is one of the significant signs of the times that there is an ever-increasing business of "looking after" estates, insuring and dispensing incomes to the idle heirs and the incompetent. The question is often asked, "Why should he work? His father left him rich." The work of keeping a fortune is, in reality, a business in itself, and sometimes it is more difficult than the making. To be employed in that business is nobler than haunting hotel lobbies or sitting in club windows.—New York Mail.

Her Own Hat the Obstruction.

A woman in a Vienna theater came out after the first act and asked to have the price of the ticket refunded, on the ground that she had complied with the request to remove her hat and she had held it on her knees and thus entirely obstructed her own view of the stage.
